DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

- I. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1-18, drawn to a data interpreter, classified in class 463, subclass 25.
  - II. Claims 19-39, drawn to a GBI service station, classified in class 705, subclass 14.
  - III. Claims 40-57, drawn to a prize station, classified in class 705, subclass 17.
  - IV. Claims 58-82, drawn to a game system with a GBI service station, classified in class 705, subclass 14.
  - V. Claims 83-106, drawn to a game system with a GBI service station and a prize station, classified in class 705, subclass 17.
  - VI. Claims 107-133, drawn to a game element structure, classified in class 700, subclass 91.
  - VII. Claims 134-152, drawn to a method of using data, classified in class 707, subclass 102.

Explanations of Restriction

Inventions I-V and VI-VII are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions teach an apparatus in group I-V and a data structure with a method for using the data structure in groups VI-VII.

2. Groups I-V

Inventions V and IV are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of Group IV does not need the claimed prize station as required in Group V. The subcombination has separate utility such as game system comprising a game device and a GBI.

Inventions V and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of Group III does not need the game system of Group V to operate. The subcombination has separate utility such as prize station.

Inventions V and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of Group II does not need the game system of Group V to operate. The subcombination has separate utility such as General Bearer Instrument service station.

Art Unit: 3713

Inventions V and I are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the invention of Group I does not need the game system of Group V to operate. The subcombination has separate utility such as a data interpreter that can be applied to various computing systems.

Inventions I-IV are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as data interpreter. In the instant case, invention II has separate utility such as general bearer instrument service station. In the instant case, invention III has separate utility such as prize station. In the instant case, invention VI has separate utility such as game system incorporating a game device with a general bearer instrument. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

3. Groups VI-VII

Inventions VI and VII are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the method of using the data structures, described in group VII, are not limited in applicability to the newprom data structure, described in group VI. Any data used to pass personal player data and game data to different machines may incorporate the methods of group VII.

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
